

SUBSTITUTE ABSTRACT

A radiator with a securing device for cooling the heat generating unit, which is attached to a base plate. The securing device basically is a locating part with a locating opening and disposed beneath the radiator to support and locate the radiator. There are secure arms with fixing holes extending radially from the locating part for being fastened to the base plate.